

The Best of 2006 (Favorite Things)

Each year beauty blogs around the web list their top 10 (or so) favorite beauty products for the year. This year Maryam's Soap Nook has garnished a couple of spots on these lists. Hooray!

The Best of 2006 Beauty lists that Maryam's Soap Nook are on:

Afrobella: Best Soap- Maryam's Soap Nook has it, hands down. I love the Pumpkin Pie bar soap, which looks and smells delicious enough to bite. My husband recently proclaimed his love for the Exfoliating Body Wash with Kukui Nut Oil and Jojoba Beads in Tahitian Petals. Color me shocked - he NEVER raves about soap or bath products. If Maryam's was enough to convert a lifelong Irish Spring user, I think any bella with a penchant for wonderfully scented bath products will be delighted with her stuff.

The Non Blonde \(#3 on her list\) . Shea Butter and Dead Sea Salt Scrub from Maryam's Soap Nook

The fact that a body scrub is even on my list of favorites should be telling. After all, this is "just" the stuff that you rub on your body to remove dead skin flakes and wash it away. Some scrubs are better than others, some smell really nice, but how much notice do you really take of them? This product makes a big difference in the way my skin looks and feels. It does the work and then some. The salt is packed into a rich cream of shea butter and several oils. The result is that my skin is not only smoother but also softer and never dry. It's a homespun product in a humble packaging that is far superior to the expensive stuff that's sold in fancy stores and spas.

All About the Pretty \(#2 on her list\) Maryam's Soap Nook Whipped Shea Butter. Julia loves a shine and this body butter sets my skin aglow.
